By Rachel O'Sullivan

SAN DIEGO, CA - Imagine that you're part of a submarine crew, on silent patrol 400 feet below the ocean's surface when suddenly your vessel stops. Maybe your sub's become entangled in underwater cable or lost power in its main engine. One hundred and seventy-six pounds per square inch of water pressure squeezes the sub's hulk and raps you with no way to surface.

No one is completely sure, but something like this may have happened in 1963 when the attack submarine USS Thresher sank off the New England coast. All crew members were lost. To prevent tragedies like the Thresher, the Deep Submergence System Project was established.

Petty Officer 2nd Class Steven C. Carlson of Millbury is stationed at the Deep Submergence Unit (DSU) at Naval Air Station North Island in San Diego. DSU is the home for the Navy's manned and unmanned deep diving submersibles and features worldwide ocean research, rescue, search and recovery capability.

"Our job is to locate and recover sunken debris like planes or ships," said the 25-year-old son of Frederick C. Carlson Sr., of Millbury. "We also provide the means for underwater research."

Carlson, a Navy machinist mate, provides support for the Mystic 1, the Navy's first deep submergence rescue vehicle (DSRV), and the Avalon (DSRV2). Both are able to dive to a depth of 5,000 feet. Their dimensions are 49x8x11 feet and are manned by a crew of four. The vehicles can rescue up to 24 people at a time.

Carlson also works with the Turtle (DSV3), a deep submersible vessel that can provide research at a depth of 10,000 feet, and the Sea Cliff (DSV 4). Its maximum depth is 20,000 feet.

"I'm a pilot for a remotely operated underwater vehicle," said Carlson. "I had to learn all systems so it would operate to the best of its ability."

For Carlson, working in this unique command is a challenge. "Being ready at all times to assist in recovery or research operations is challenging. My most interesting experience here has been discovering the depths of the ocean and knowing that some day I may be able to save or preserve a life in some way."

Board Denies Sewer Abatement

By Alec G. Belisle

SUTTON - The first order of business at the Selectmen's April 7 meeting was to address a request from developer Mark Panaccione to have his sewer abatement fee forgiven in order to compensate him for installing a drainage system which diverted water from property he purchased on Stone School Road. Last week, Panaccione told the board that he bought the property because he thought he had an agreement with Highway Surveyor Ray Smith and Town Administrator Dexter Blois that he and the town would work as partners in installing drains in that area. He said that it was his understanding that he would supply the labor to install the pipes and the town would pay for the materials.

At issue last week was a concern articulated by Selectman Wally Johnson that if the board gave Panaccione a sewer abatement, in effect, the town would be paying for the developer's betterment.

Board member Mary K. Connor said she thought that paying for the materials through MILLBURY - The Rev. Raeburn Cameron had two reasons to celebrate on April 5: his return to preaching duties at the Millbury Baptist Church and the celebration of his mother's 80th birthday. As readers of his column "From My Window on Farnsworth Court" know, "Pastor Rae" has been undergoing cancer treatments for some time. Members of his congregation and the community-at-large wish him continued and ever-improving good health.

Give the Center a Chance

The Millbury Youth Center is scheduled to reopen its doors on Friday, May 1st, following extensive renovations by the building's new manager, YOU, Inc. The Youth Commission, which oversees the center, and the Center's Director, Penny Downs, have adopted many rules to alleviate concerns parents had in the past that may have led to their decision not to allow their children to attend the Center.

We applaud the efforts of the Commission in adopting these regulations. The Youth may view them as restrictive but the parents, neighbors of the Center, and the community at large will view them as responsible restrictions to ensure that the Center provides the youth of Millbury with an opportunity to be responsible while participating in a variety of activities with their peers.

Given the opportunity, the Center could provide Millbury with a host of responsible, community-oriented youth, but, the Center must be given a fair chance by parents. The Center has adopted many of the parent's concerns in its regulations - now the parents must reciprocate by allowing and encouraging their children to become a part of the Center and, perhaps even more important, by participating themselves.

We The People

...and justice for all?

To the Editor:

On September 16, 1990, a young man by the name of George Cowan was driving a 24-foot speedboat on Ramshorn Pond in Millbury. Well acquainted with the Cowan boat, residents of the pond later remarked that the bow of the boat typically rode high in the water because the boat was too large to plane properly on the small pond. Also well-known was the fact that Mr. Cowan had been cited earlier in the summer by environmental police officers for boating infractions and failure to register his boat.

On September 16, 1990, Mr. Cowan's boat was still unregistered and failed to carry the safety devices required by law. But that was not a concern as he and his friends took to the water in the boat.

This was the day that George Cowan, supposedly in control of his boat and supposedly looking where he was going from the driver's seat, struck my parents' aluminum rowboat, that of Lea and Omer Gonya, and killed them.

Mr. Cowan was charged with criminal negligence only (manslaughter is too severe a charge in Massachusetts). Assistant District Attorney Maurice O'Brien researched the case as thoroughly as possible, I believe, calling to the stand 17 people to testify on February 6 at the Clinton District Court. The case was heard by Judge Elliott L. Zide.

Though witnesses testified that my parents were travelling close to the shoreline, no one could prove they were within 150 feet of the shore when they were struck, where the law demands headway speed only. Though there was testimony to the fact that people sitting in front of the driver sometimes stood up and that the bow of the boat was blocking his view as well, no one could say that Mr. Cowan couldn't see where he was going. Though there was evidence of drinking, i.e. beer cans and the smell of beer in the boat, according to their sworn testimony, none of the seven young people with Mr. Cowan, nor he, had consumed alcohol on that Sunday afternoon, except for one young woman who testified that she had had one beer. And so it went.

As Mr. O'Brien presented his case, the judge grew weary of so much testimony, asking if he would learn anything new from further witnesses. He yawned frequently. He admitted that he had missed hearing some testimony, presumably because he was daydreaming.

Finally, the judge concluded that as far as he could see, it was a matter of two boats being at the same place at the same time. Mr. Cowan was fined $150 for the boating infractions. The trial was over.

Two boats in the same place at the same time. One moving at 5 m.p.h. carrying two elderly people, the other carrying seven people, speeding to pull a skier into a landing. They did not intend to strike my parents, to be sure. In fact, they seemed to have helped as much as they could at the accident scene. But the question remains, is there no concern or law governing right-of-way and responsibility on Massachusetts waterways?

Does the message from Judge Zide indicate that if you don't mean to kill someone with your speedboat, you're not guilty of negligence? According to the judge, my parents were as guilty as Mr. Cowan because they were in the way.

In conclusion, I would like to express my appreciation to Mr. O'Brien for his valiant effort on my parents' behalf.

Will work to bring about changes

To the Editor:

During the past year, while looking for a house, I have become a reader of your newspaper. I am now having a house built in Millbury and within the next few months will become a permanent resident.

Being from Vermont, originally, I like the small town politics and Town Meeting and hope to become active in town government as soon as possible. There are some things in town that I find rather upsetting and will work to bring about some changes.

The first problem that hits a newcomer, is the way the people in the condo project have been treated. It appears that they have a problem that the town fathers ignore and when questioned, they get nasty with the president of the association. (4-2-92 issue)

Millbury Selectmen's Meeting Digest

Pros and Cons of Charter to be discussed April 23

By Edward J. Cooney

MILLBURY - The April 7 Selectmen's meeting began with the approval of minutes followed by Administrative Assistant Earl Chase's weekly report. Chase asked the Board to vote to confirm a suggestion from the town Auditor to change an original request for a transfer of $4000 from the Reserve Account to the Town Report Account to the Selectmen's "All Others" account for the reprinting of the Charter Booklet for the April 28 ballot. Chase said the Auditor thought that account was more appropriate. The Board unanimously approved the change.

Fire Engineers

The Board rejected a motion to approve a request from Fire Engineer Tom Nault that his resignation be effective at the end of June. Cristo noted the years of good service Nault has given the town as Fire Chief and as a Fire Engineer. He had to step down to get a second on the motion, which was defeated 2-3.

Chase noted that Massachusetts General Laws state appointments to the Board of Fire engineers are to take place in April.

Gauthier said that in the past, those appointments were always made after the annual town election.

Bleau suggested that all be appointed at the end of the fiscal year with interviews conducted in June.

The Board agreed to appoint all five members to the Board of Fire Engineers on June 30, 1992 on a 4-1 vote, Gauthier opposed.

Youth Commission

The Board briefly interviewed Bruce and Judy Nichols to fill two vacancies on the Youth Commission. The Nichols recounted their experiences with youth groups in their church. The Board approved their appointment unanimously with the support of the Youth Center's Director, Penny Downes.

Town Planner

The Board received a letter from Town Planner David Hulseberg notifying the Board of his intentions to leave Millbury for another position in Chicago. Cristo noted the good job Hulseberg has done for the Town since being employed as the Town Planner and wished him well in his new endeavor.

Cristo asked Chase to check with the Planning Board concerning the filling of that position. Chase said there had been some discussion of possibly sharing a Planner with Grafton on a limited basis.

Resource recovery advisory committee

Gauthier, a member of the Resource Recovery Advisory Committee, asked Chase to look into finding two replacements for the committee. The committee is studying ways to do retesting of emissions and air sampling as a comparison with previous testing done five years ago. The question of funding the testing is a priority.

Lachance asked that the Committee ask Wheelabrator to look into garbage and trash trucks coming through the center of town. Gauthier said Wheelabrator has already indicated that they will notify the truckers they are not to continue that practice.

Town Charter

The Board met with Sylvio Bourdeau and Bill and Arthur Moore, opponents of the Charter that will be on the April 28 town election ballot. The Charter is the same as the one defeated two years ago and is up before the voters by petition of private citizens Robert Brainard, Wayne Sclar, and Terry Hamilton, proponents for adopting the charter. Each side was given 15 minutes to speak to the charter proposal and a request for a public meeting. Cristo explained that the meeting would allow for discussion on the pros and cons of the charter.

Bourdeau said he agreed that a discussion on the pros and cons would work out well but questioned why the Board of Selectmen would get involved in the hearing.

Cristo said the board would not be participating in the forum and is not involved in the pros and cons.

Bourdeau maintained that the public's perception is that the Board stands to gain from the charter since it will provide them with the ability to make appointments to 35 positions. "It's a matter of skating a thin line as to a potential for a conflict of interest," he said.

Cristo said the Board would not be taking a formal position on the issue of the charter.

Arthur Moore said he thought that the individuals involved in bringing back the charter should have gone before the town meeting for the $4,000 in printing costs.

Cristo replied that based on legal opinions, the Board is required to print and distribute the book to each household in town. "It is not because of a group," he said.

Bourdeau said the same could have been accomplished by sending out a flyer. It was also noted that two years ago, the Millbury-Sutton Chronicle printed the Charter at no cost to the town.

Cristo said the points made were interesting.

Sclar said there are concerned citizens who believe in the charter and that if it is implemented, changes in how town government operates on a day to day basis could result in dramatic savings. "We are concerned with the economics of the future, not just for next month," he said.

Town Planner Dave Hulseberg suggested that Michael Curran, who served as a consultant to the last charter commission, be asked to present the charter in an objective way. Since there was no disagreement from either side, Curran will be contacted.

The date for the hearing was set for April 23 with a structure that would allow for a moderator, a presentation of the charter, pros and cons, and an open discussion.

Bleau suggested that both Sclar and Bourdeau be seated in the audience during the forum.

[Please note: the Chronicle will be unable to report on the hearing since the hearing date is April 23 and the charter question will be voted on in the April 28 election, two days prior to our next publication date after the hearing.]

letter of complaint received last week from ten individuals alleging possible violations by the Granger Lynch Company. The letter asked for a public hearing and a site plan review on work being done at the company's property on McCracken Road.

Hulseberg said that after reviewing the letter and the work being done at the site, as well as receiving answers from Granger Lynch to several questions raised, he determined that the issuance of the building permit by Morin was proper. He went over the letter received from the complainants point by point, and noted that the plant and property is being used as it was prior to the adoption of the by-law referred to in the letter and was thus grandfathered in. As to the removal of material for the footings for a building, Hulseberg said the work was done outside the floodplain. With respect to the stockpiling of aggregate that the selectmen questioned, Hulseberg said it will be recycled through a new process being developed which will result in a reduction of that stockpile. "The DEP is in favor of that process because it will be cleaner. Both DEP and the Army Corps of Engineers see no need to monitor the work there because it is grandfathered," Hulsberg said.

Hulseberg also noted that the building permit wasn't issued until all documentation was received and it was verified that the work was outside the floodplain. "The upgrade in the present facility and the change in the manufacturing process doesn't need DEP approval nor does it fall within the town zoning bylaw," he said. He also noted that the batching material process is only 16% of the whole process and that the new drum installation will allow for recycling of aggregate.

With respect to an increase in square footage and parking spaces at the site, Hulseberg said Granger Lynch was questioned thoroughly and, as a result of the answers received and an on-site review, no site plan was required.

Hulseberg noted that no addressees for the 10 complainants were included in the letter and he said those who signed the letter were not even abutters to the company. He also said that one individual whose name appeared on the letter said it was not his signature.

The Board expressed concern with the increased traffic that will occur on Greenwood Street near the playground area since the trucks cannot use the McCracken Road bridge because of weight limits.

Hulseberg noted that DEP has no jurisdiction over that issue but said the state would if the trucks were going out directly from their property to a state highway since there would be a concern with highway curb cuts. He also said that at the present time, there is no town bylaw to address the issue of increased traffic. He suggested the new town planner and the Planning Board be asked to develop a by law to deal with that issue.

Rene Morin said the building permit was not issued to Granger Lynch until all the requirements were met and reviewed, including the signing off of the Conservation Commission regarding issues related to wetlands and the flood plain.

In other matters, the Board approved a request from Morin to select a low bid of $1700 to demolish a burned out structure at 25 Rogers Street with a lien to be placed on the property to recover the cost.

Street Lights

A letter was read from a resident at 420 Greenwood Street relative to a street light that was moved from in front of their house to another pole location. It was noted that a street light cannot be located at every driveway on a street. Lachance said he knew of a street where it is so.

Selectman Donald Gauthier said he was disenchanted with the Board and Chairman Cristo because he was not allowed to speak at the last meeting. He said he resents being ignored. He referred to the board's 4-1 vote at a previous meeting (Gauthier opposed) to move a street light on Gould Street at the request of Randolph Mogren.

"At a previous meeting," Gauthier said, "somebody comes in here complaining about the location of a street light, and what happens? We move it from this pole to that pole. The Board now fluctuates. Gerry (selectman Gerry Bleau) hit it on the head when he said the lights are to light up the street for the public safety and not for the individual's driveway." Gauthier went on to note that $150 was spent to move that light three times. "Basically, it was unnecessary," he said. "We talk about fiscal responsibility, about fiscal restraints, and we just go out and move lights around like they are going out of style."

He conceded that there may be some lights that are not needed but said he didn't feel it was right to start moving a street light around because someone thinks it should light up a driveway. "I don't mind being voted down," he said, "but I don't like being pushed aside and not given my chance to address anything that is on the agenda whether it's new or old or at anytime in the evening when it comes up. I have a right to address it and I was not given that right last week."

Cristo said Gauthier had indicated that the issue of street lights could be put off until the following week because of the shortness of the agenda. "I apologize for not recognizing you as you had said earlier you didn't mind putting it off," Cristo said. He also noted that there were several people present at the last meeting who were not on the agenda.

Gauthier replied that he thought it was up to the Chairman to ask other members of the Board if they want to recognize anyone not on the agenda. "If they want to be heard," he said, "they should go to the end of the agenda after all business has been completed. We should have some say."

Cristo said any member of the board can make a motion and they will be recognized. "I get a little tired of asking everyone on the Board what they think and what they want to do," he said. "I know when I was not chairman and I had something to say, I would put my hand up and get recognized. If someone wants to make a motion to do something different than what I'm proposing, that's fine with me. Sometimes I feel I'm forced into making decisions since I don't hear from anyone else here."

Gauthier noted that anyone wanting to address the board must be listed on the agenda by Friday noon.

"People come in here, and they do have a right to be heard," Cristo said. He noted that the individual who spoke last week had issues regarding legalities, "and if we were doing something illegally, we better find that out first," he said. "I didn't hear from anyone else. No one else spoke up."

Lachance said that in all the years he has been on the Board, he could count on one hand the number of calls he received over lights. "Then when the Board institutes a new light [program] because of a rate factor to save money, and lighting has been there for years and years, all of a sudden all hell breaks loose." He also said he didn't realize that the number of lights in town would be reduced through the program.

Chase said that 75 lights were discontinued with the changeover.

Bleau said he couldn't recall any mention of a reduction in the number of lights when the program was proposed to the board.

Another Point of View

Is Government the Problem?

By Lawrence Moore

On one concept, we all agree. We are mired in a National problem of great magnitude. Finally, at the highest level, what most of us have been living with has been acknowledged. Prompted by anxiety about the upcoming election and fearful of a steadily rising apprehension among the electorate, our President has offered solutions. Grandly proposed in the State of The Union message, little since has been heard and nothing has happened. March 20, his tax deadline, has come and gone, and most observers fear tax action has died for this year. Among the Congress and its staffers, the White House and its supporters and the vast bureaucracy, there seems to be no desire or ability to address our vital problems.

Is it not strange that the average man-on-the-street can tick off the national problems, but that the leaders we have elected seem able to do no more than confirm the same list? The conclusion to which we are inevitably drawn is either that we have inept people in government, in the Congress, and in the staff and line functions, or that the system as we know it is flawed and unworkable.

If any one of us, in business or career, year after year was losing money, going into debt, not satisfying our clients and, seeing no hope in the future, kept doing the same thing the same way, we would get no sympathy and no respect. We would be told to get into another business, change our systems, do something different, or you and your family will starve. Is the United States in such a dilemma?

A lead article in the New York Times of March 30, written by an anonymous mid-level government official, tells, in scathing detail, of the inability of the bureaucracy to get out of its own way and to get things done. Perpetuity becomes the objective. Problems generate surveys, not corrective action. Politics, domestic and international, governs decisions. The author says "In today's Washington, matters affecting the current and future well-being of Americans are seen only as nettlesome disruptions that must be calmed, not problems that must be solved or responsibilities that must be faced."

By chance, this past week on Public Television I watched a documentary on W. Edwards Deming, the father of Japan's post-war industry. Top executives of Ford, GM, Xerox, Proctor and Gamble, and the U.S. Navy extolled his theoretical approach to product or service. In essence, all agreed with Deming that experience is not the best teacher, that changing people is not the answer, that reward and punishment is not the answer, that setting goals and objectives is not the answer, and that money is not the answer IF THE SYSTEM IS BROKE AND CANNOT FUNCTION. That applies to industry, to education, to the drug war, to banking, to health, and to each one of our systems that is not fulfilling its reason for being. And certainly that applies to our Government.

If our Democracy is to survive and provide for generations to come, we need a leader with a concept, a deep thinker, an analyst, a planner. And he must have the guts to challenge Congress, change the bureaucracy, chuck the waste, choose effective administrators, and mobilize the people to support what might be a trying transition to a new concept of quality government service.

Is there such a man? Is it Bush, Brown, Clinton, Tsongas, Perot - or some as yet unknown savior? Whoever he is, we need him, because our government, as it functions now, IS the problem.

On The Shelf

By Rosemary Waltos

Color is part of everyday communication. Individual colors used alone or together convey different messages. For instance, bold colors convey excitement. Think of the bold colored neon signs at a carnival and the excitement the colors lend.

Action and activity can be calmed by introducing cold colors. Hues from green to violet are used for their calming effect in hospital settings. However, they can have a different effect in a work of art, creating a gloomy and oppressive look. Pablo Picasso's "The Old Guitarist" is a good example.

Warm colors, such as orange, pink, brown, and burgundy, can be invigorating and attract the eye. They are bright and splashy, as well as overpowering. Used in the workplace, warm colors motivate, and in the retail industry, they are used to entice sales. Look at the predominate colors used on book jackets and in magazines, on posters and various forms of packaging. These colors help to sell products.

Passed down through the ages, certain colors convey well-known messages. For instance, red shows passion and romance. Red quickly attracts our attention and is the color of hearts, flames, and romance. However, deep red looks regal. Yellow, on the other hand, is a lively and happy color; it is the color of sunshine. Green is considered tranquil and pastoral, but can also signal jealousy. Blue has a calming effect, but, like light deep red, dark blue signifies royalty. Navy blue is dignified.

We are entrenched in color, it is all around from natural and man-made sources. Despite our day-to-day interaction with color, it can be overwhelming, making even simple personal choices, such as color schemes for your home, perplexing.

Now, you can learn more about the language of color and its application. On Tuesdays, April 21, 28, and May 5, the Millbury Public Library will present the three part series "Language of Color" from 6:30 to 8:00 p.m. This series is designed to help participants develop a sensitivity to color and design. Artist and art instructor Rita Strause Berkowitz will lead participants in a discussion and examination of the use of color in fine art, photography, graphics, movies and ads. She will provide demonstrations and involve participants in hands-on activities to explore how color is used and perceived.

Berkowitz is an artist and art instructor currently teaching at Bradford College, Becker College, and the School at the Worcester Art Museum. She teaches color theory, basic drawing, advanced and beginning painting, and fashion illustration.

"Language of Color" is made possible with funds from the Massachusetts Arts Lottery administered by the Millbury Arts Council. Registration is necessary. To register, call 865-1181. Space is limited. All art supplied will be provided with additional funding from the Friends of the Millbury Public Library.

Gauthier said that when the final proposal came in from the consultant, it included how many lights would be eliminated. "We should have checked then how many should have been taken down. The proposal was there at the time."

Lachance questioned how any savings can be shown from the program since 75 lights have been dropped.

Cristo noted that most of the complaints about street lights have come from the west side of town.

"We are lighting up people's property in some instances, not the streets," Gauthier said.

Budget

The Board discussed briefly a spread sheet showing the FY'92 budget as level funded, looking for areas that could be trimmed to come up with a 6% cut amounting to approximately $203,000.

Lachance suggested that the Board consider establishing a work day of 9-4 at the town hall.

Cristo noted that the Board has control over its own office but that other department heads can exercise their own options to cut 6%.

Lachance said there are only two options: one to cut salaries back to 1990 levels and the other to cut personnel.

Cristo said that salary cut backs could be done for non-union personnel, but with the unions it would be a matter of collective bargaining. "It would be up to them if they want to save positions," he said.

Lachance noted that a 6% cut in the police budget would amount to $58,000.

It was also noted by Cristo that layoffs would require additional cutting of personnel to make up for the unemployment compensation that would be required.

Correspondence

- ATP, Environmental Engineering Consultants, notified the Board that they would be willing to work with the Board of Health to craft a letter of a technical nature relative to the problems at Paul Revere and what direction the town might want to take.

- Copies of letters from Alexander Belisle, Grafton Street, to the Energy Facilities Siting Council and the State DPU were read. Belisle requested information from both state agencies prior to his testimony before a House subcommittee on pending legislation related to the electro-magnetic radiation produced by power lines.

The meeting adjourned at 10:00 P.M.

Devoe Taylor Post Meeting

MILLBURY - A meeting of the Devoe Taylor Post #9 American Legion will be held Monday, April 20, at 7:30 p.m. in the Asa Waters Mansion. The Memorial Day program will be discussed. Stuart Mulhane, Commander, will preside. Members are asked to attend.

Bauer Campaign Video

OXFORD - The Bauer for State Representative campaign has developed a "Video Campaign Brochure." This 30 minute television program, done without scripts or rehearsal, allows the voters to see Monica Bauer discuss "her criticism of politics as usual, and some of her solutions for the future." The program also features a discussion with residents of all three towns in the 7th Worcester district: Auburn, Millbury, and Oxford.

"People are suspicious of politicians and politics as usual," Bauer said. "The usual campaign brochures are slick, promise more than can be delivered, and promote the candidate without letting people really get to know the candidate. This 'video campaign brochure' lets people see how I really talk, without a script; and it also lets people see for themselves my experience, background, and point of view. It is also, thanks to the miracle of cable television, less expensive than the traditional political mailing."

The first Bauer "Video Campaign Brochure" can be seen immediately after the 6:30 p.m. news on WGMC-TV, cable channel 3, on Monday, April 13, and Thursday, April 23. For those who do not have cable and would like to see the video, copies can be obtained by calling Bauer headquarters at 832-8392.

a sewer abatement was improper and that, if Panaccione did have an agreement with Smith, then he should be compensated from Smith's budget. If his budget lacks the necessary funds, then it is up to Smith to solve the funding dilemma, she said.

Blois said he had discussed the drainage problem and the solution with Panaccione and suggested that one way it could be resolved would be through a "private/public partnership" that Blois said has occurred on other projects which have benefitted the town directly. He said he told Panaccione to check with Smith for a cost estimate for the materials as a partnership.

Blois said he also suggested that Panaccione have an article placed on the Town Meeting Warrant for reimbursement. He said he could not comment on whether the drainage problem was exclusively Panaccione's or the town's or both.

Blois added that in January, Panaccione approached him with the suggestion that he recover compensation for the materials by having the sewer abatement fee waived. Blois said he told Panaccione to approach the Sewer Commissioners with the proposal.

Smith said Blois told him to give Panaccione an estimate of the cost of materials. "I told him I didn't have money in my budget," Smith said. He estimated that the materials would cost $8,300. "I was asked to give him a price, and that's all that I did."

Sewer Commissioner Richard Ezold said that the sewer fee abatement had nothing to do with the sewer commission and that the commissioners were against the abatement for this project. Later in the meeting, he told Panaccione that if he was doing something for the sewer department he could see waiving the sewer fee, but in this instance, that was not the case.

Johnson agreed that the sewer commission should not be involved in this issue since authority to allow abatements is in the hands of the selectmen. He also said that money from the sewer department should not be used to subsidize drainage for developers.

Panaccione explained that as a developer he must be aware of what he must do in order to conduct his business. He said that in this case, he sought advice before he bought the property. He said he went before town officials and the conservation commission before he committed to buying the land. He added that had he thought he would not be compensated for installation of the best drainage system, he would have installed a less costly one which would have accomplished the same purpose.

One argument against providing the abatement was that such action might set a precedent.

Panaccione argued that his case would not be setting precedent because he sought advice prior to the purchase of his land. He said by the time he realized that the town lacked the money for materials, the project was completed and inspected.

Selectman Rick LaBonte agreed that it was not proper to fund such a project by forgiving sewer fees, however, he asked Panaccione, "In your view, did you feel you had an agreement?"

Panaccione responded that he discussed the problem before he bought the land and would not have gotten into an agreement if he did not feel that he would be compensated.

Connor commented that the issue before the board was not whether Panaccione had an agreement but, rather, should the selectmen give him a sewer abatement. "I don't think the sewer privilege fee should be used that way," she argued. Connor said that she felt the way the project was completed is a benefit to the town but, "Someone from the Highway Department should say this is a benefit to the town." She added that if there is not enough money in the Highway Department budget to pay compensation, then the town should find ways to pay it.

"We have a lot of these (drainage relief) conditions (like Panaccione's)," Smith said. "If we're going to relieve them, we'd better increase the highway budget."

After more discussion, Strieby asked for a motion to grant the sewer abatement for Panaccione. With no motion forthcoming, the abatement was not granted.

In other matters, the board briefly discussed level funding all budgets, including union contracts, and approved an increase in the gas inspection fee from $10 to $20.

Sutton Lions Seek Nominations for 'Citizen of the Year'

SUTTON - Since 1988, the Sutton Lions Club has annually recognized a resident of Sutton who has made an extraordinary contribution to the quality of life in the town. "Dedication, determination and a compassion for people are common characteristics of the Citizen of the Year Award," said Jim Crosby, Club President. "We feel that this is a most appropriate way to recognize members of our community who may not otherwise receive the appreciation they deserve for a job well done in the spirit of benefitting others."

Past recipients have included the Leo Moroney Family (1988), Evelyn Shaw (1989), Mary Arakelian (1990), and Martyn Bowden (1991).

Nominations from the Sutton Community are welcome and should be sent to Jerry Anderson, Club Secretary, at 194 Burbank Rd., Sutton, MA 01590. All nominations must clearly state why a particular individual is being recommended for this award. A presentation will be made at the Club's annual Awards/Officers Installation Dinner, June 20, in Worcester. Deadline for nominations is May 22.

Vial of Life at Sutton Polls

SUTTON - The Sutton Council on Aging and Camp Fire, with assistance from C.V.S., will initiate a "Vial of Life Campaign" at all Sutton polling sites on election day, April 25. Camp Fire members will assist in filling out Vial of Life information. A Vial of Life contains pertinent medical and personal information and is taped to the inside of a person's refrigerator. A sticker is placed in a visible location for emergency medical personnel to spot. Sutton residents are urged to take part in this life-saving project.

Soccer Scene

UPTON - The Soccer Scene U-12 Boys defeated Western Mass. 3-0 at Northboro Middle School recently. Bill Benoit of Sutton provided an assist in the win. The U-13 boys tied the Bandits 0-0. Singled out was Joe Benoit of Sutton for outstanding play.

From My Window on Farnsworth Court

By "Pastor Rae" Cameron

Passion Week - Easter - death, burial, resurrection. Spring is here and many things that have laid dead are coming to life again. And so we celebrate in our churches the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

This leads us to the question concerning our own resurrection and that of our loved ones who have gone on before us. First Corinthians chapter 15 (I Corinthians 15) is where the Apostle Paul wrestles with that question in response to some who were saying that there is no resurrection of the dead.

If there is not resurrection of the dead, then Christ has not been raised, and if Christ has not been raised we are of all people most miserable. We are yet in our sins, and our faith is all in vain and there is no hope for our own resurrection.

But Christ has indeed been raised from the dead. Paul and the Apostles gave their lives up in martyrdom, and all they had to do to save their lives was deny the resurrection. The alternative was "Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die."

The resurrection has stood the test of time. For almost two thousand years, it has been preached and believed. Billy Graham preached all over Russia, and when he was about to leave he asked a bishop who had been with him if he had any suggestions about his preaching. The bishop's answer was that he should continue to preach the resurrection for without it, we have no hope.

We offer to you this time-tested message. Christ died for your sins, was buried, and raised again the third day. Believe it! Amen.

Volunteers sought for resource recovery committee

MILLBURY - The Millbury Board of Selectmen is seeking two individuals to volunteer to serve on the Resource Recovery Committee. If interested, contact the Selectmen's Office at 865-4710.

Easter Sunrise Service

MILLBURY - On Easter morning, April 19, at 5:45 a.m., there will be an Easter Sunrise Service at the Clearview Country Club on Park Hill Avenue. This is a combined effort of the Millbury Baptist Church, the Millbury Federated Church, and the First Congregational Church of Millbury. It will be a short service of music and the reading of the first Easter morning from the Synoptic Gospels of Matthew, Mark, and Luke. A pot-luck continental breakfast will follow back at the First Congregational Church. In case of rain, the service will be held at the First Congregational Church. All are welcome.

It also appears that our school department is guilty of similar treatment of their employees. The report of the Discrimination Committee sheds a poor light on the administration.

The Superintendent of Schools made a comment that was reported in your paper recently that bothered me. It was regarding a teacher who was not certified in the subject matter she was teaching. He replied that it was not a college or honors course and therefore didn't make much difference. Does he or the school board feel that the other students do not deserve the same quality education?

Most of the people that I have met in town so far are very friendly and nice, it makes one wonder why the officials aren't more like them.

Lynn, MA

Endorsement

To the Editor:

Just over a year ago, the Weld Administration announced its intention to merge seven of the twenty-seven private, non-profit home care corporations that help the elderly remain living at home. An 18 member "Consolidation Task Force" was formed to review this proposal.

One of the members appointed to this Task Force was State Representative Paul Kollios (D-Millbury), who also serves as Chairman of the Legislature's Human Services and Elderly Affairs Committee.

After five public hearings, 16 hours of testimony, and 300 witnesses, the Task Force concluded that mandatory home care consolidation might not be effective, and that no forced consolidation should occur.

Rep. Kollios played a major role in the deliberations of this Task Force. His insistence on an open, fair process--including public hearings at the State House--helped assure that the "voice of the people" would be heard.

In the end, the elderly of Worcester County, and across the state, can thank Representative Paul Kollios for his efforts in keeping home cares locally owned and locally operated.

Mass Home Care
